Complaints about inhuman treatment from allen landlords are common. the apartments are known for their poor condition, and many tenants reported issues with their landlords. one tenant, a Mrs. Allen, claimed that her landlord refused to fix the broken windows on her apartment, and that she had to wait for weeks before any repairs were made. despite this, Mrs. Allen continued to pay her rent and stay in the apartment.

Mrs. Allen's situation is not uncommon. many tenants report similar experiences, and the landlord-tenant relationship in the Flatlands is known for being tense and fought over. despite this, many tenants are still hesitant to speak out against their landlords, fearing eviction or retaliation.

In the face of these challenges, the flatland Tenants Union has been working to support tenants and hold landlords accountable. they offer a free legal clinic where tenants can get advice and support on their cases, and they advocate for stronger tenant protections at the city level. the Union has also been working to increase awareness of tenant rights and educate tenants on how to protect themselves from abusive landlords.

The tenancies of today are not unlike those of the past. landlords continue to prioritize profit over the well-being of their tenants, and tenants are left to navigate a broken system on their own. however, the flatland Tenants Union is committed to fighting for change and ensuring that all tenants have a safe and dignified place to call home.
Dear President Shackleton,

On September 12th I came before the Board of Education to express my opinion on the future of the Ad Hoe Committee. In this letter I will explain fully the meaning and implications of this statement.

As you are aware, the Ad Hoe Committee has been established to support the community's efforts in the integration of schools. The committee's functions include providing oversight, addressing issues of equity, and ensuring the implementation of policies that support racial equity in education.

However, I must express grave concerns regarding the current state of the Ad Hoe Committee. The committee's lack of progress and its inability to address pressing issues have left me with no choice but to express my concerns publicly.

I understand the challenges faced by the committee, but as a member of the community, I cannot remain silent. It is time for the committee to demonstrate tangible progress and commitment to the principles it was established to uphold.

I urge you to consider the implications of the committee's current state and to take decisive action to ensure its effectiveness in serving the community.

Sincerely yours,

John D. George
Chairman

Sports Life

By The Sportsman

Browns, who has always been the master of the linebacker, the master of the annumaban appearance, is a case in point. His work in the backfield is well-known, and his achievements have been widely recognized. However, his role in the offense is often overlooked.

Browns is not only a great player, but he is also a great team player. His leadership and dedication to the team have been instrumental in the team's success. His contributions to the team's offensive strategy and his ability to make difficult plays have been crucial in the team's victories.

In conclusion, Browns is not only a great player, but he is also a great team player. His leadership and dedication to the team have been instrumental in the team's success. We should all take a moment to appreciate his contributions to the team and to recognize his efforts on and off the field.

Curtis Baker, Allen family members and friends wait outside the Allen home.

Carefree Campers

EDITOR'S NOTE: A few weeks ago Mrs. Pauline Geer, who lives in Laddie Gardens, told me she had four children and they shared a few stories. From what I gathered, the children love to camp and often go on weekend trips with their friends.

Mrs. Geer described her experiences of camping and shared some interesting stories. She talked about the fun times they had while exploring the great outdoors.

The Girl Scout Council began by explaining the benefits of camping for children and how it helps them develop important life skills.

The council offered a unique camping program called "The Camp Out," where children could learn about camping and have fun at the same time.

This year's program (1965) was the first time the council had organized a camping trip for girls. Many of the girls were excited about the opportunity to try something new.

"We went to the camp at Henry S. Dobbin's Youth Camp in Marlin, from Monday afternoon through Friday. For a family of four, there was $5; for five, $6; for six, $7; and for seven, $8. Everybody brought a tent and a folding chair for the time. The girls had to wash the dishes and prepare their own meals. The whole experience was very enjoyable."

I hope you have enjoyed reading this story about the adventures of the Geer family and their love for camping. If you are interested in learning more about camping or participating in a camping trip, I encourage you to contact the Girl Scout Council or your local camping association.

J. D. George

PLANNED PARENTHOOD

MEANS WANTED CHILDREN, HAPPIER FAMILIES

For the newest birth control methods, call Planned Parenthood, 482 W. MacArthur Blvd., Oakland, 654-8822, or 887 A 105th Ave., East Oakland, 562-2344.