Meditation in woods,
Wheeler's Ranch,
Sonoma County, Calif.

March 30, 1971
A.D.

i sat in the heart of the woods. i sat very still. i soon lost myself.
The constant thoughts that usually clutter my mind seemed to have vanished. The wind filled my soul and i felt my body become rooted into the earth. i felt each beat of my heart pump blood thru the veins of the universe. i heard nothing but the silence of my inner most being.
All flowed freely and evenly within and out of me. When i opened

My eyes everything appeared fantastically illuminated.
Each leaf, tree, and blade of grass had a glowing aura around it that encircled All in one mass of energy and love. And I knew I was one with All, and that I had to let this new awakening shine. Then understanding, patience, silence, hope, and kindness must share and spread the love, goodness, truth, and purity of Mother Nature, of God.

March 31ST, 1971

I finished with the Street scene & city scene.

Am living in the country - in a communal type place. I'm into a hermit thing now. Trying to get as close to nature, learn as much about Indians, and get as mellow, clear headed, patient, strong & healthy as possible. I have the birds, sky & sun & stars & trees & insects & & stream for company. I listen & learn. I meditate a lot - also deep in the woods facing the sun. I am getting higher & higher each day. Material position mean little to me - I talk less + listen more - I can withstand almost anything - don't get hassled by too many things - am growing very patient + understanding. I feel a great love - a maternal type thing towards other people. yet I feel that maybe 'hibernating' is wrong + a weakness.

I cannot face noise,
~~of~~ lots of people anymore. My energy gets dispersed in many directions + I feel speedy + paranoid

I'm very alone. But keeping to myself in few friends seems perfect for me right now. I am still not close to anyone. I cannot open up & pour myself out to anyone. I feel that it is an ego thing to do so & would just be a waste of the other persons time.

I know this must be wrong. I do wish I had at least one person I was just about as close to as I am to myself.
So they could help me get my shit together.
& keep me from feeling

So alone & separate
From everyone else.
Even tho. 'age' doesn't actually matter. I sometimes regret having gone thru so much in just 19 yrs. Maybe I am burned out, yes I feel like I am wastin g. There is so much more I want to learn & do. I know so very, very little. Sometimes I feel so old & sometimes I feel like a child searching for her mother. MOTHER, wherever you are.

I do not believe in using any method of birth control other than Faith in God. I have never been 'with child' yet and I believe that when God feels it is the right time for another human form to be placed on this earth, the seed will be planted within me - and I will help it grow - so I can fulfill God's Request.

I miss Maggie so much. She was a beautiful dog who in her own way really knew what it was at she had a great Love for me & always watched over me. In the woods she would Rescue & lead me when Lost. She was a dear Dear friend whom I will never forget & never stop missing. I keep it to myself tho. because nobody would ever really understand or really care. We went thro so much together, pulled each other thro dreadful experiences. She was the closest friend I ever had.

QUOTE:

There are many people running around today with plans & ideas that will transform the world "if only ever you would get together" Most of us are realizing that we can't do much transforming unless we ^{1st} get ourselves together & the ^{1st} thing we should do is to make our little part of the planet like we want the world to be. -- beginning with ourselves. New Hampshire

It Rained last night. The heavens opened up again at last - to quench the thirst of, & to bathe this fertile land. Today is a new day. The air is clean & sweet & fresh. The uncut grass covered with sweet morning dew. I sit on the front porch of this little wooden country house. It is early & the birds are singing & ~~the~~ racing about the way they always do at tea time. The sun is doing its best to swallow up the remaining huge, white, cotton like clouds.

Where there are no clouds the sky is clear & deep blue across the road are a few white country houses, 2 red barns & a little church with a bell on top.
Pine, maple & birch trees grow tall everywhere.
And blue & purple & white & yellow & orange wild flowers pop their heads up all around - filling the air with their sweet smell.
All is framed ^{ed} by the tall majestic beauty of the 'White Mountains'.
The clouds are resting on these mountains - which are usually purple velvet, but today appear olive green + black - still wet from the rain. crickets are chirping + the only sound of modern civilization that can be heard are the few cars the whoosh by, mostly pulling trailers.

A family on vacation no doubt. But, oh to be back ~~to~~ⁱⁿ California, where the ~~the~~ weather is so gentle, + the land so fertile, where the ocean is so blue + peaceful + yet ^{so} fierce + strong as it rushes up against the rugged

Rocky Coastline, yes,
'White Mountains' - you are regal & handsome. But wind-carry me back to California where I may be swallowed up by its beauty, never to return again.

21 July 17,

Oh, God. I sense your presence each day. You come closer and closer to me - and my face is a fire - and sparks of bright light frame my body. And silence fills my soul. I become more & more silent & peaceful each day. I observe life, and each person, each word seems so simple - so clear to me. I understand - but respond only in my silence, detachment. Flesh - so lowly. Temptation knocks - people talk too much, too loud - loud music, drugs, alcohol, impure, poisonous.

Foods, lust, sexual desire - all fall into the trap - the temptation of flesh - self-lounging physical wants. It disgusts me, fills me with guilt - why are we so weak. I must abstain, be strong, & pure - a silent leader for others, yet at times I feel so alone, so alone and I too fall into the trap of selfish desire.
People realize - somewhere in their hearts they MUST realize - but, they keep their eyes downcast afraid to have a glimpse of the beautiful white light - that could fill their faces + shines above their heads, carrying my child - I feel close to Mary, the mother of Jesus.

I feel like an Eternal Mother - taking all too my breasts. Keeping them warm, + safe + healthy.
I love this most - but, at times I remember that "I" am Motherless - I do not want to take myself to my own breast.
This would not satisfy, not soothe my own trouble, + fears - so I concentrate on God, and wonder - Should I always be this ~~way~~ way - detached from the flesh & striving for a spiritual release - alone accept for God? or shall I too fall, like all other human beings, and fall in love, and find a ~~father~~ ^{FATHER} for my child - & live peacefully on this earth - until my final liberation from this body - & death brings me close to Him at last. I feel this is what I want - I want to fall also - I want to be loved - and I want my child to know the joys of a father & a mother. Is it selfish, and asking too much to be able to be like everyone else - is it just fear & weakness on my behalf?

I have sinned - I have satisfied my lust - selfishly and out of wedlock. yet you have given me a child - which is the one thing that brings a woman closest to God more than anything else in her physical life-time. Did you do this out of goodness, out of pity, or for punishment? Please answer me - & quiet my soul. I remain strong & devoted - but fear that I ~~am~~ too shall break under the burden.

Dream

And there were a row of clowns - all in a line - looking at me.
They all wore frozen masks - sad faces. They were all pointing at me and saying: "Go away.
We don't want you. You are not one of us. Get out!"
And it was always raining, and I was always walking, and looking up at the sky waiting for the sun to shine.
